

PAIN+SUFFER'N

The dustbowl returns... The gods looked down and knew, they opened up and let fall their tears of joy, wetting the ground with pride and love. Slowly filling our hearts, for there are those that know and love the pain and suffering like it were a secret childhood place. And that place, a barrier in a field, a steep rock garden, a rutted pool of mud all spread out over a dusty northwest in place just outside the reach of the tarmac and street signs but somehow faster and more exciting than any piece of pavement known.
